American Association for the Surgery of Trauma Research and Education Foundation-Tabletop 1

The American Association for the Surgery of Trauma Research and Education Foundation was formed in April of 1994 by the AAST Board of Trustees. The purpose of the Foundation was to sponsor research scholarships in the field of burns, trauma, and acute care surgery and to foster advances in education. To date, the Foundation has supported thirty-nine research scholarships. Currently, the Foundation is supported by the AAST, private industry donors, and contributions from AAST members. With these donations, the Foundation has been afforded the ability to fund four scholarships every year. With further support, the Foundation hopes to advance its funding projects into many other areas of interest such as multi-institutional trials and additional scholarships. Contributions to the Foundation are tax deductible and may be made by any individual.
